DIRECTOR

Reverend Nicholas Liston, M. A.

Chaplain

Dedication

To one who has loved us all through these years,
Who has cheered us with smiles and dried away tears.
Your kindly deeds we can never repay,
Your wonderful guidance will lighten our way,
Though now the time comes for us to depart
Long will you live, Father, enshrined in each heart.

In Memory

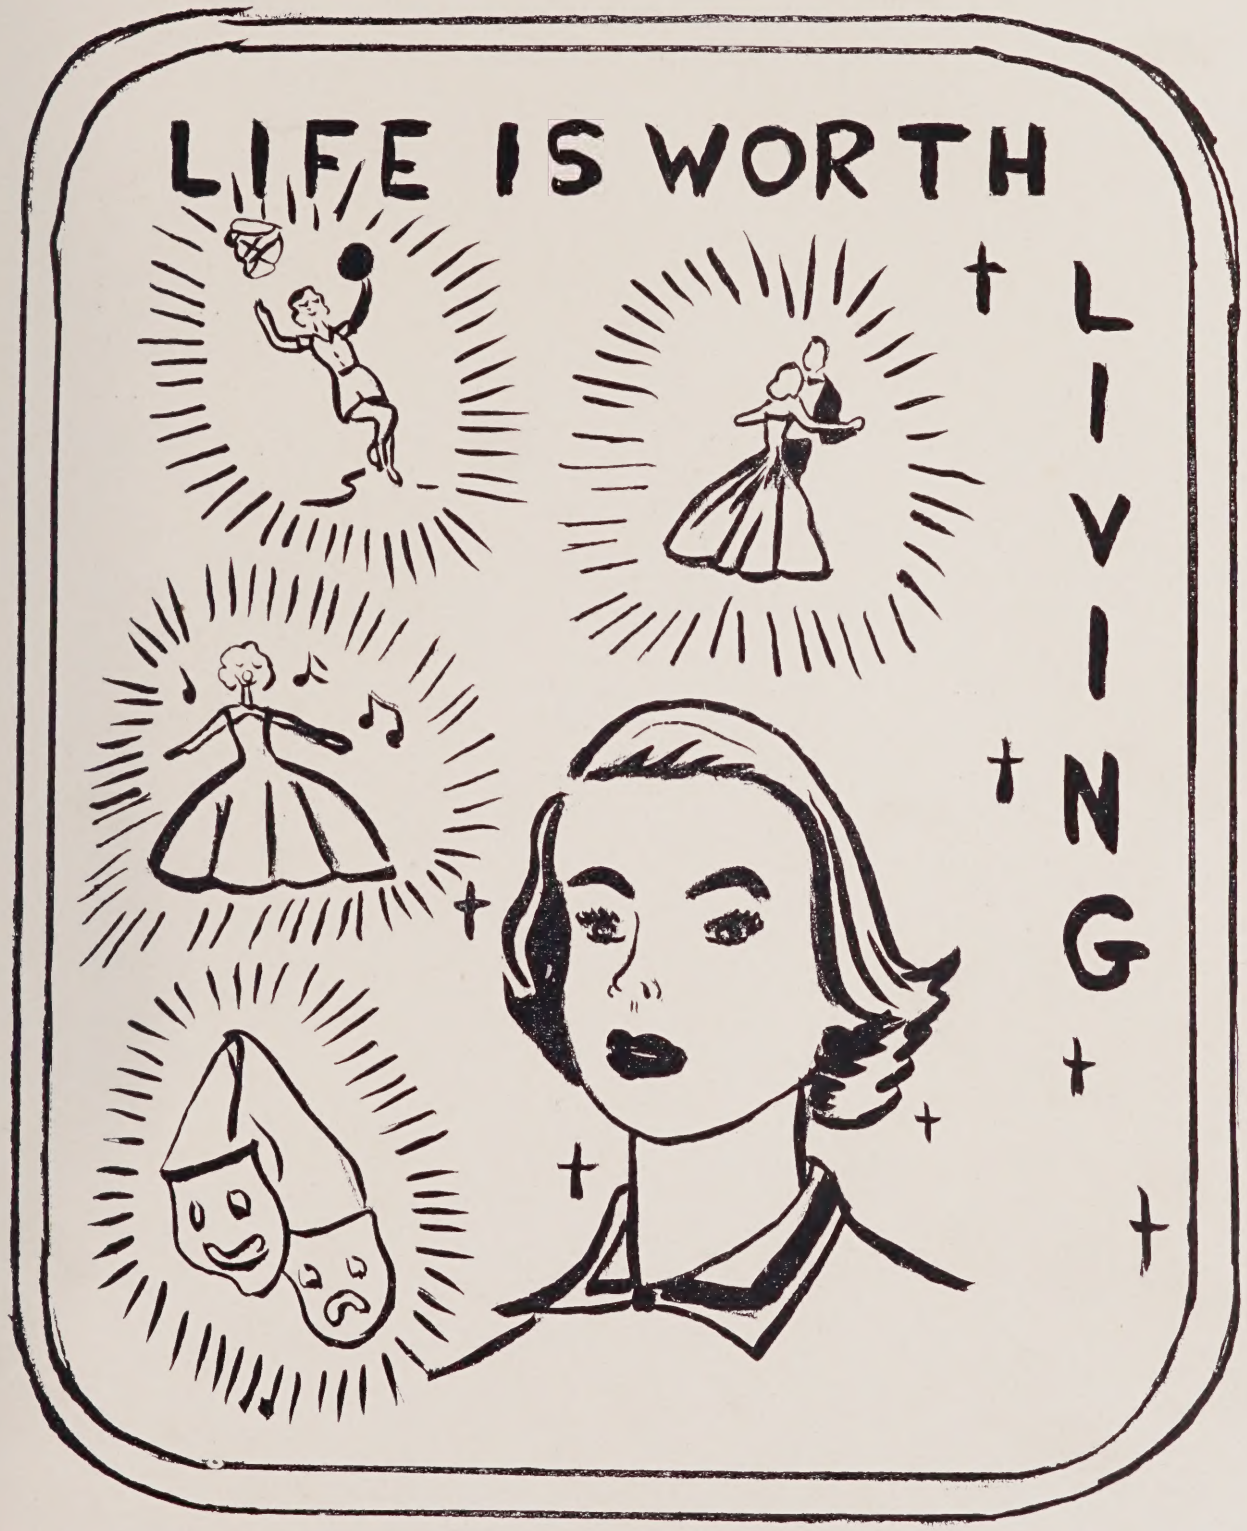
Mrs George A. Schwoyer

No matter where we are,
You're with us all the time.
At night your eyes become the stars;
In day, your smile, sunshine.

At school you're part of all we do,
You help us find our pleasure.
Each new delightful thing is you,
You're like a golden treasure.

At dances you're the music gay,
Your smiling face we see.
It's just as if you're not away,
It's like it used to be.

Yes, loving, sweet, and charming, too,
You help us every day.
When e'er we want to call on you,
We just kneel down and pray.



LIFE IS WORTH LIVING

NIGHT BEAT

Strike It Rich

We, the class of 1954, being of fairly sound mind and body wish to make the following bequests:

To Reverend Mother Sharry we leave a one-way ticket to S.G.P.

To Reverend Mother Corbett and all the faculty we leave our undying admiration for having put up with us for four years.

To the Juniors we leave very unwillingly our beloved Mother Potts to guide them through the mysteries of Senior English.

To the Sophomores, our sister class, we leave these next two years at S.G.P. for which we rather envy them.

To the Freshmen we bequeath all the trophies we could never quite win and our unquenchable exuberance which we never managed to control.

The individual members of the class would like to make known the following bequests:

I, June Blanton, do leave my much loved Christ School annual to Lee Arbogast, and my "love" for piano to Patricia McGowan.

I, Babs Blomberg, do bequeath a hamburger to Mike Maloy and my ability to blush to my little sister by proxy, Patsy Burgess.

I, Nancy Bradfield, do will my blonde hair to Tottee Koontz, and my identification bracelet to Marilyn Mathews.

I, Sara Buford, do leave my collection of pierced earrings to Dudley Rogers and my ability to stay cool, calm, and collected to Diane Garrison.

I, Barbara Burgess, do bequeath my sweater collection to Alicia Cruz-Bustillo, and my job as accompanist in the morning assembly to Pat Sawyer.

I, Sallie Carter, do will my Latin notes, plus the ones willed to me, to Hildegard Kopf, and my secret formula for keeping thin to Marian Neamand.

I, Carol Demmon, do leave my belts to Barbara Ann McLeod, and my Spanish ability to Carol Anderson.

I, Kay Eshleman, do bequeath by brown tortoise shell glasses to Donna Smith, and my laugh to Stuart Smith.

I, Margaret Frith, do will my Navy pennant to Sandra York, and my quiet voice to Annette Gagnier.

I, Judy Fuldner, do leave my train tickets to Florida to Barbara Kay Jernigan, and my love of peroxide to Diana Cruz-Bustillo.

I, Anne Furey, do bequeath my toothbrush to Stuart Pegram, and my driving ability to any Junior who wants it.

I, Gabrielle Gabayet, do will my special delivery letters to Sophy Ceballos, and my shortness to Kay Salley.

I, Lucinda McConnel, do leave my kilt to Connie Kennedy, and my athletic ability to Kitty Dixon.

I, Mary Frances McGowan, do bequeath to my sisters, Jo-Ann and Patricia, all my homework papers which I have faithfully saved since my Freshman year, and all my letters which they can finally read.

I, Margaret Miles, do will my front seat in Glee Club to Lucille Meredith, and my love of Duke to Joyce Alexander.

I, Jane Murphy, do leave my daily newspaper to Carolyn Placak, and my singing voice to Maria Lamprinakos.

I, Mary Gladys Rogers, do bequeath my piggy bank which has never known the sound of money to Sallie Beverly, and my ability to keep things to Joan White.

I, Eloise Saunders, do will my Asheville School jacket and three sweaters to Jane Strom, and my calmness to Leonor Andreu.

I, Nancy Schwoyer, do leave my eyebrow pencil to Barbara Beveridge, and to my sister Margaret Mary my four years on the Student Council.

I, Pat Stanley, do bequeath my address book to Myra Wolf, and my tickets to "Pat and Mike" to Patricia Puckett.

I, Harriet Talmadge, do will my debate papers and brief to Ruth Wilkins, and my seat by the door in physics class to Karen Cornell.

I, Louise Wood, do leave my French notes to Carolyn Bauer, and my week-ends to Beverly Cook.

And now sadly we, the Seniors, do leave.

In witness whereof we have herewith subscribed our signature.

THE SENIORS.

This was published and declared by the said testators to be their last will and testament, in the presence of us, who, at their request have subscribed our names thereto as witnesses, and in their presence, and in the presence of each other.

HIGHLIGHT THEATRE

What's My Line

During my last visit to New York City with the Junior Birdsmen (of which I am Captain) I decided to take in a little culture so I went to the NBC Television Studios to see the latest space cadet programs. On my way in, however, I was sidetracked into taking a tour of all the programs. So with my mind in outer space (as usual) I proceeded with the group.

The first program we looked into was "The Concert Hour" starring — why my goodness — it's Jane Murphy! What a surprise! Jane is now the featured soloist on that program. Only now the word solo means so—lo — you can't hear her! The concert world is saved.

Her accompanist is beaming broadly. Everyone now recognizes that famous smile. It's the trademark of none other than Liberace Guglione Puchinni Burgess, playing that ever-popular "Howard's Song That We Could Never Find Lyrics For."

Desperately trying to overcome my surprise, I proceeded to the next studio. We arrived just in time to see a cowboy show. Everything was going along smoothly until the hero fell off his horse, and then I found out that he, or rather she, wasn't a hero at all, but just "Fireball" Rogers taking Hopalong Catastrophe's place for the night. Florence Nightingale, Jr. — alias Sara Buford — was right there to administer first aid to "Fireball's" injuries so everything was under control.

The next program was "Public Secretary" starring — you guessed it — June Blanton. June works on T.V. from January to November and then she goes to the North Pole to help Saint Nick get ready for Christmas.

Walking down the hall we came upon an odd character selling something. At first, all I understood was something about Bermuda. Then the awful realization hit me. Yes, it was our own Frithie selling pink sand to prospective Bermuda tourists. We stopped to talk for a minute. Poor girl — she was crushed. Her application to West Point had been rejected and she was leaving for Annapolis the following week to become an "Iddie Bitty Middie!"

Someone shouted, "Look out!!" I dodged just in time. What was it? The guide explained. It was a new invention—a remote control fire engine designed by none other than Carol Demmon. (Usually it can be heard for miles, but someone had forgotten to put the rocks in the hubcaps.)

Our next stop was to be the "Amateur Hour", but before we reached it, our guide handed out programs to us. Incidentally, the guide looked quite familiar. Looking closer, I was very glad to see Margaret Miles. I was also quite perplexed as I never expected to see Margaret working as a guide. She explained, however, that she was only working until she finished her latest book, "The Evolution of the Emory Board." She promised me a first edition copy.

Anyhow, as I said before, Margaret had given us programs for the "Amateur Hour". I looked at mine and made the suggestion that we leave this one out of the tour. You see, Kay Eshleman was making her first appearance as a ballerina. But my objections were overruled so in we went. I sat in the last row, but I enjoyed the show so much that I threw caution to the winds, moved up front, and sat down right next to Pat Stanley, of all people. Pat said she was looking for new material for her own T.V. show — "The Old Maid Comedy Hour." No, I couldn't figure that one out either, but I never could quite understand Patricia. She told me she had heard from Judy Fuldner. Judy is down in Florida running her own beauty salon where tourists flock to take advantage of her new invention — "Beach Bleach."

Glancing down at my program again I was amazed to see something I hadn't noticed before — Nancy Schwoyer modeling for the Maybelline Eyelash Curler Company. I always knew Nan was one to persevere. Nan has also been made president of the SPCS — Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Seniors.

The show was over except for the commercial, but I'm glad I didn't leave right away because who should be up on the stage posing for that Pepsodent smile but Mary Frances McGowan! As I was walking up the aisle waving to Mary Fran, I bumped right into Louise Wood. She was in a hurry to get backstage for her tap-dancing class with Vera-Ellen, Dan Dailey, and Ray Bolger.. I noticed something odd about Lou, and then after a second glance, I realized that instead of a watch, she was wearing an alarm clock on each wrist! I wanted to ask her why, but she hurried on.

Continuing our tour Margaret led us into the next program, "Race the Clock", where the Master of Ceremonies was none other than Lucinda McConnel. There's a rumor that she might lose her job, however —

Anne's eyes
Gabrielle's complexion
Mary Frances' teeth
Mary Gladys' smile
Pat's hands
Lucinda's legs
Weezie's feet
Carol's posture
Babs' figure
Louise's style

IN ABILITY WOULD HAVE:

June's business ability
Nancy's friend making
Sara's poetic ability
Sallie's athletic ability
Margaret Frith's artistic ability
Kay's adaptibility
Judy's dependability
Jane's dramatic ability
Nancy Schwoyer's alertness
Barbara's music ability
Margaret Miles' intelligence

seems she can't bear to part with the money when the contestants win. Oh, well, that's our Lucy.

After the show I went backstage to see her. She told me that Eloise Saunders had started a home for retired 'A' models and their drivers. Weezie always did have a kind heart.

Lucy also told me that she had heard from Nancy Bradfield. Nancy has a wonderful job as a T.V. announcer. She does commercials but instead of calling for Philip Morris, she rides a Camel to work every morning. I told Lucinda goodbye and was on my way out of the building when I saw a spotlight — but it wasn't a spotlight at all — it was Harriet Talmadge coming towards me in a mink-studded diamond coat. Blinking profusely, I put on my sunglasses (a Junior Birdsman is always well equipped) and made my way through the crowd to speak to her. Her story was unbelievable. She had gone to Alaska to sell can openers to the Eskimos. Well, when she got there she took off her hat and every speck of ice in Alaska melted!! That flaming red hair! She was crowned Eskimo Queen for a Day and the government is still praising her. She really made a fortune.

When I got outside the building I discovered a letter in my pocket I had forgotten to mail. It was very important so I decided to send it special delivery. As I stopped to buy a stamp I noticed that the machine was one of those manufactured by Gabrielle Gabayet. She made a fortune because the stamps she makes are guaranteed to fly by themselves!

As I stepped out into the afternoon and started to cross the street against the light, the traffic cop blew a whistle at me furiously — and that's just who she was — Furious! I might have known Anne Furey would have ended up this way. But it's really for the best. At least she's not on the streets — driving!!!

Well, it was really wonderful to have seen all my former classmates, but I do wish they had followed me and gone into the Junior Birdsmen — we have such fun!

THE LAND OF

In the dawning of creation long ago
God had Asheville in His Mind.
With master stroke He flattened the plateau
Between the Blue Ridge and the Smokies,
Between their ranges row on row.
He poised high peaks all round about it,
And He carved two rivers down below.
Then just above the purple mountains,
God domed with deepest lazuli
The primeval Land of the Sky.

Cherokees first roamed the forests,
Roamed the pungent pine tree forests,
Saw the sunrise gild the hilltops,
Saw the mists rise in the valleys,
Saw the sunset tinge the mountains.
Junaluska and Sequoya
Led the Indian farmers, hunters,
Far to eastward, far to westward,
Blazing trails to unify
The legendary Land of the Sky.

DeSoto and his Spanish expeditions
First explored the mountain regions,
Then led their soldiers onward to the West.
The French arrived but left a slight impression,
For Indians on the warpath stopped their quest.
Then followed colonies of English, Irish, Scots,
Moravians, Quakers, Hugenots,
Who sought religious freedom at its best.
The valleys and the hills they occupied.
In the peaceful Land of the Sky.

By thousands sterling pioneers
Sought Carolina's treasure-troves,
Became courageous mountaineers,
Who built log cabins in the coves
And lined the trails along frontiers.
They tilled the land and lumbered, too
They hunted, trapped, and mined.
They traded and their business grew.
The mountaineers' far-seeing eyes
Loved the fruitful Land of the Sky.

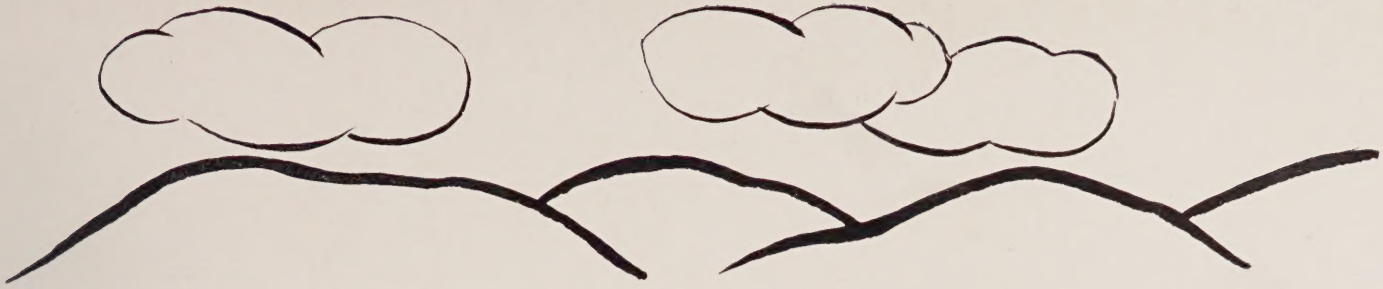
In November 1797, Asheville, named for Governor Samuel Ashe, became a town incorporated.
The routes of trade north, south, and west from Asheville radiated.
A postoffice, railroad, telegraph followed in succession,
Because the climate and the altitude gives a keen impression.
On the eighth of March in 1883,
Asheville was made a city by decree,
Noted as a health resort and tourist colony.
1895—that was the date
Mr. Vanderbilt finished Biltmore Estate --
The chateau, gardens, and village gate;
In stone and marble and masonry,
With buttress and turret and filigree —
A fairy castle for all to see.
But better than stone or gallery
Was Mr. Vanderbilt's legacy —
Our national forests and conservations,
Wild life sanctuaries, tree plantations
Were his gifts to future generations.
Mr. George Vanderbilt amplified
The flourishing Land of the Sky.

On the southeast edge
Of Asheville's border
A mountain keeps guard
Like a faithful warder,
It reflects the changes
Of the city below,
As the years pass by
And the decades grow.

Twentieth century zest
Swept this mountain, too.
Victorian Inn graced its crest
Like other resorts and hotels
With their year-round guests.
New Yorkers in their long shiny cars
Drove down for the winter.
Southerners liked the cool night stars,
So came up for the summer.
Friendly informality!
Gracious hospitality!

In the new decade of 1910
Life on the mountain top pulsed again
The Sisters of Christian Education
Changed the Inn to a school foundation.
The mountain summit now enshrined
St. Genevieve-of-the-Pines,
With grammar school, high school, college, too.
Swiftly the fame of the private school grew.
Fresh, young vitality!
Fundamentality!
Strong spirituality!
Her shield's emblazoned in red and white,
With pine cones dotted like satellites.
"Opere et veritate"
In St. Genevieve's Land of the Sky.

In the twenties debonair
Asheville wore an English air;
Tea rooms, craftshops, antiques rare,
Golfers in knickers and argyle sweaters,
Weavers, artists, men of letters,
Lively real-estate go-getters.



THE SKY

The marks of 1930 activities
Were tobacco, farming, and forestry,
Big corporations, and industries.

When the forties burst with World War Two,
Asheville performed her part.
With the army, navy, and air force, too,
She gallantly shared her heart.
As the war ended its residue,
Asheville planned to start anew—
To share God's gifts, to magnify
The beautiful Land of the Sky.

The mountain tip on the city's border
Watched the pieces fit in order:
Hotels, motels, tourist courts,
Inns, and ranches in rapport,
Dot the city's tapestry,
Cover highway arteries.
Churches, parkways, national parks,
Workshop-colonies for the arts,
Summer camps of every sort,
Tournaments in all the sports,
Conventions, clubs, associations
Throng the town with delegations.
Asheville in totality
Broadcasts hospitality
In the welcoming Land of the Sky.

To prove Ashevilleans are true Tarheels,
Let's hear what a tour of the South reveals.
Richmond? Up in Virginia? Yes, m'am.
Richmond preserves with dignity
The White House of the Confederacy.
There's Monument Avenue with Robert E. Lee,
The State Capitol, the F F V.
But Asheville has Biltmore Forest, Lakeview Park,
The deep blue skyline just at dark,
That rich purple panorama,
Backdrop for an outdoor drama,
"Thunderland."

Chattanooga? Over in Tennessee? Yes, siree!
Here is the center of the T V A
With dams and lakes and waterways.
Rock City, Lookout Mountain, Chickamauga,
Where fought the Blues and Grays.
But Asheville's the Gateway to the Smokies,
The big link in the Blue Ridge Parkway,
That loops and ties Western Carolina.
Now just what could be finer
Than the richest little city in the U S A?

Atlanta? Way down in Georgia? Yas, suh!
People love dear old Uncle Remus' home,
The cyclorama polychrome,
Stone Mountain's granite dome,
The dogwood-peachtree monochrome.
But Asheville's the key to highland pageantry,
The Craftsman's Fair and the jamborees,
Callers' energy, fiddlers' harmony.
Square dancing's enhancing, entrancing to see,
So it's up yonder for me.

Charleston? Next door in South Carolina? Yes, my deah!
There's its quaint historic atmosphere,
Beautiful gardens in the spring of the year,
The Citadel cadets with military air,
The harbor and the beaches there
Make Charleston famous everywhere.
But Asheville's famous with room to spare.
Its soft blue haze, its mountain air.
In winter there's Pisgah's bride and groom,
In June Craggy Gardens all in bloom,
The fall flames with brilliant autumn leaves,
But all year round there's St. Genevieve's!

We've circled the South and come back home.
Now you understand
From us first-hand
Why Asheville Tarheels never wish to roam.

From the mountain crown
On the edge of town
St. Genevieve-of-the-Pines
Like a beacon shines.
She trains the youth
In faith and truth,
For a life pure, brave, and high,
A tower of strength as the years march by.
In love and gratitude untold
We dedicate this hymn of old,
That God will truly verify
In the Heavenly Land of the Sky.

"I lift up my eyes to the mountains, from whence help shall come to me.
My help is from the Lord, who made heaven and earth.
Never will he who guards thee allow thy feet to stumble; never will he fall asleep at his post!
Behold he shall neither slumber nor sleep, who guardeth Israel.
The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy protection at thy right hand.
The sun shall not burn thee by day, nor the moon by night.
The Lord will guard thee from all evil; the Lord will protect thy soul.
The Lord will guard thy journeying and thy homecoming, now and forever more."

Amen.
